

The Equality Act (2010)

In Britain we have a law called 'The Equality Act 2010'. This law is here to protect people from being treated unequally and it makes discrimination illegal.

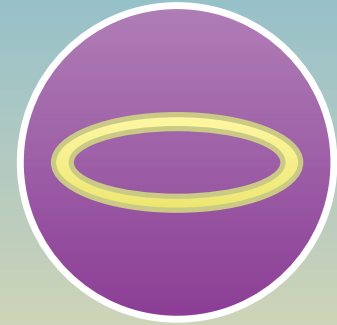

'The Equality Act 2010' states that the following characteristics are protected...

Age

Race

Religion or Belief

Disability

Sex

Sexual Orientation

Marriage &
Civil Partnership

Pregnancy &
Maternity

Gender Reassignment

This law applies at school, work, at the doctor's, in a shop or anywhere you go. It is the job of the police and the courts to enforce this law, but it is everyone's job to make sure that people are treated equally and fairly.

The Equality Act (2010)

In Britain we have a law called 'The Equality Act 2010'. This law is here to protect people from being treated unequally and it makes discrimination illegal.

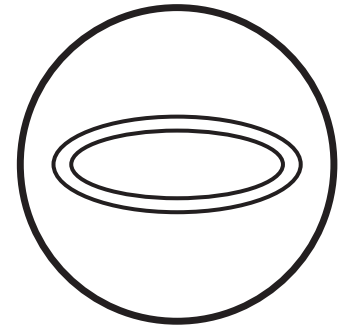

'The Equality Act 2010' states that the following characteristics are protected...

Age

Race

Religion or Belief

Disability

Sex

Sexual Orientation

Marriage &
Civil Partnership

Pregnancy & Maternity

Gender Reassignment

This law applies at school, work, at the doctor's, in a shop or anywhere you go. It is the job of the police and the courts to enforce this law, but it is everyone's job to make sure that people are treated equally and fairly.

The Equality Act (2010)

In Britain we have a law called 'The Equality Act 2010'. This law is here to protect people from being treated unequally and it makes discrimination illegal.

'The Equality Act 2010' states that the following characteristics are protected...

This law applies at school, work, at the doctor's, in a shop or anywhere you go. It is the job of the police and the courts to enforce this law, but it is everyone's job to make sure that people are treated equally and fairly.

The Equality Act (2010)

